Webster Financial Corporation (NYSE: WBS), the holding company for Webster Bank, announced that the Company has taken actions to reduce its exposure to telecommunications credit risk in its loan portfolio. Five substandard shared national telecommunications credits totaling $25.8 million at September 30, 2002, have since been sold or written down to current market bids, resulting in a fourth quarter charge against the allowance for loan losses of approximately $13.5 million. At December 31, 2002, Webster expects written down telecommunications loans held for sale to amount to approximately $7.3 million, of which $4.2 million are nonperforming loans. Webster expects to sell these commercial loans held for sale within twelve months.

Earlier in the quarter Webster sold its two classified shared national cable credits totaling $9.8 million, resulting in a $1.6 million charge-off.

Webster has increased its planned fourth quarter provision for loan losses by $11.0 million to $16.0 million and notes that its year-end allowance for loan losses should be virtually unchanged from September 30, 2002. The higher provision has been offset by gains on the sale of securities. These actions should have no net impact on fourth quarter or full year 2002 earnings. After taking gains on the sale of securities, Webster's net unrealized gain in its available for sale securities portfolio is approximately $61 million.

Ongoing analysis of the telecommunications industry and a review of credits comprising telecommunications exposure led Webster to conclude that these credits evidenced continuing economic uncertainties. Accordingly, Webster has chosen to reduce exposure in the telecommunications sector, even as the sector's performance has shown signs of improvement. All of Webster's telecommunications loans classified substandard have now been sold or written down to current market value. The remaining telecommunications loans, all performing, total $65 million and represent less than one percent of the total loan portfolio. There are no classified telecommunications loans remaining in the portfolio. These actions are consistent with Webster's history of decisive action in the interest of maintaining high credit quality throughout economic cycles.

Webster currently estimates that nonperforming loans, including those held for sale, should fall to approximately $49 million at year end from $68 million at September 30, 2002 and the ratio of these loans to total loans will be approximately 0.60 percent compared to 0.82 percent at September 30, 2002. The allowance for loan losses as a percent of nonperforming loans is expected to rise to approximately 260 percent at year-end from 170 percent at the end of the third quarter, while overall loan loss coverage at year-end should approximate 1.40 percent of loans outstanding, approximately the same as at September 30, 2002.

The tables below detail the credit related actions taken in the fourth quarter on an estimated basis and include comparisons to year-end 2001 and to the 2002 third quarter.
