Item 7.01 Regulation FD Disclosure

Beginning with the first quarter of 2006, American Express Company (the Company) intends to revise the presentation used in connection with the reporting of certain financial information, including certain revenue and expense reclassifications as follows:

Certain fee payments to Corporate Card clients and Global Network Services joint venture partners as reductions to discount revenue, previously classified as increases to other expenses;

Amounts paid to cardmembers under cash-back card programs as reductions to discount revenue, previously classified as reductions to other commissions and fees revenue;

Certain payments received from the Company's Global Network Services independent operators and joint venture partners principally as increases to discount revenue, previously classified as increases to other commissions and fees revenue; and

Amounts earned related to the sale and purchase of foreign currencies for customers as part of the Company's foreign exchange business, as increases to other revenues, previously classified as decreases to other expenses.

The Company intends to include the aforementioned reclassifications in its future financial reporting, reflecting the continuous review of our evolving businesses. These reclassifications have no impact on the Company's consolidated pretax income, income taxes, net income, total assets or total liabilities. In addition, these reclassifications have no significant effect on the Company's previously reported growth rates in consolidated revenues and expenses.

The Company is also revising certain expense allocation methodologies, which are only related to segment results and have no impact on the consolidated results. These relate to standardizing certain practices for technology and corporate expense allocations across the Company's segments. The Company has refined its technology expense allocation methodologies to be based on internal measurements of technology usage by segment. Such technology expense allocations were previously based on a combination of usage and historical trends. Corporate expense allocations have also been revised to better align charges to the segments based on their use of corporate services. Such corporate expense allocations were previously based on certain financial measures, including pretax income by segment.

The financial and statistical information reflecting the reclassifications and changes described above for the years ended December 31, 2005 and 2004 and the quarters ended March 31, June 30, September 30, and December 31, 2005 and 2004, is furnished herein in Exhibit 99.1 and is incorporated herein by reference.
