FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CGI announces adjustments to responsibilities of senior management

Montreal, Quebec, January 31, 2006 CGI Group Inc. (CGI) announced today that it has decided to make some adjustments to the responsibilities of its senior management. Effective immediately, Serge Godin, currently chairman of the board and chief executive officer takes the position of executive chairman of CGI, and appoints Michael E. Roach, currently president and chief operating officer, as president and chief executive officer of CGI. Michael Roach will continue to report to Serge Godin and the composition of the CGI Executive Committee remains unchanged and includes Serge Godin, Michael Roach, André Imbeau, executive vice-president and chief financial officer and Paule Doré, executive vice-president & chief corporate officer. These executives previously reporting to Mr. Godin will now report to Mr. Roach.

Our world is changing and changing fast. More and more governments, agencies and companies are contemplating outsourcing their IT or business processes. Indeed, I have been leading CGI for 30 years and I must say that I have never seen such a vibrant market. In fact, we are looking at untapped markets in Canada, Western Europe, and the U.S. of several trillion dollars. This will have a profound impact on our industry, notably further accelerating its consolidation. These trends represent tremendous opportunities for CGI and we must ensure that we take full advantage of them, said Serge Godin, executive chairman. The purpose of this adjustment is to allow me to devote even more time to strategic initiatives. I want to work at strengthening our partnerships with existing clients as well as fostering the necessary relationships that will lead to new large outsourcing contracts and accretive acquisitions, said Serge Godin.

Edgar Filing: CGI GROUP INC - Form 6-K

Over the past eight years I have seen first hand what a great team, focused and committed to the realization of a dream can achieve. I am proud to be part of this team and have the opportunity to continue to contribute in my new role to the CGI dream.

Michael Roach has more than 30 years of experience in the technology and services industry. He joined CGI eight years ago and became chief operating officer in 2002. Mr. Roach has relocated to Montreal where CGI's head office is located.
