ABN AMRO lifts stand-still requirement and allows due diligence by RBS consortium

ABN AMRO has repeatedly tried to engage in cooperative discussions with a consortium led by Royal Bank of Scotland. Despite explicit requests, the consortium has to date not provided us with any clarification on its indicative proposal, particularly regarding funding (including EUR 50 bln of cash), implications for staff and clients, regulatory issues, execution risk and other possible conditions. Until the receipt yesterday evening of the formal notification referred to below, the three refused to provide this information.

On Wednesday 25 April 2007, the consortium issued a press release including an indicative price per share without previously informing ABN AMRO of either such price or press release. As a further sign of the consortium's unwillingness to pursue discussions on a constructive basis, ABN AMRO received a formal notification yesterday evening from the consortium indicating preparedness to launch a public offer without the recommendations of ABN AMRO's Managing Board and Supervisory Board.

Nonetheless, ABN AMRO remains committed to exploring the consortium's proposal in a constructive manner. In order to facilitate discussions, ABN AMRO has therefore decided to remove the customary requirement for a stand-still provision and has offered the consortium access to due diligence material.

In the absence of a compelling and concrete proposal from the consortium, ABN AMRO considers that the Barclays offer is in the best interests of ABN AMRO's stakeholders and we continue to recommend that offer to our shareholders.

This is an announcement pursuant to article 9b paragraph 1 of the Dutch Securities Markets Supervision Decree (Besluit toezicht effectenverkeer 1995).
