Sona Mobile, Inc. and Subsidiary
Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements

1. Company background

Sona Mobile, Inc. (the Company) was incorporated on November 12, 2003 in the state of Washington. The Company is a provider of wireless solutions that bring mobility to businesses in the wireless data marketplace. The Company has customers in the banking, manufacturing, entertainment, and utilities/energy industries.

2. Summary of significant accounting policies

These consolidated financial statements are presented in United States dollars and have been prepared in accordance with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles and reflect the following policies:

(a) Principles of consolidation

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Company and its wholly owned subsidiary, Sona Innovations Inc. The subsidiary was acquired December 23, 2003 and the assets and liabilities are included in the 2004 and 2005 consolidated balance sheet. The results of the subsidiary's operations are recorded from the date of acquisition. All intercompany accounts and transactions have been eliminated in consolidation.

(b) Cash and cash equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents are comprised of cash and term deposits with original maturity dates of less than 90 days. Cash and cash equivalents are stated at cost which approximates market value, and are concentrated in two major financial institutions.

(c) Foreign currency translation

In accordance with the provisions of SFAS No. 52 "Foreign Currency Translation", assets and liabilities denominated in a foreign currency have been translated at the year end rate of exchange. Revenue and expense items have been translated at the transaction date rate. For the foreign subsidiary which utilizes its local currency as its functional currency, the resulting translation gains and losses are included in other comprehensive income. Gains or losses resulting from foreign exchange transactions are reflected in earnings.

(d) Long term investments

Equipment is stated at cost. Depreciation is provided on a straight line basis over the estimated useful lives of three to five years.

(e) Measurement uncertainty

The preparation of consolidated financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities, at the date of the financial statements, and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting periods. Actual results could differ from these estimates.

(f) Software rights

Software rights are recorded at the excess of the purchase price of the subsidiary over the fair value of the subsidiary's identifiable net tangible assets. The carrying value of the rights is being amortized over the program application's estimated useful life of four years.

The Company tests for recoverability of software rights when events or changes in circumstance indicate that their carrying amount may not be recoverable. Circumstances which could trigger a review include, but are not limited to significant decreases in the market price of the assets;

F-5

Sona Mobile, Inc. and Subsidiary
Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements

2. Summary of significant accounting policies (continued)

significant adverse changes in the business climate or legal factors; accumulation of costs significantly in excess of the amount originally expected for the acquisition or construction of the asset; current period cash flow or operating losses combined with a history of losses or a forecast of continuing losses associated with the use of the asset; and current expectation that the asset will more likely than not be sold or disposed of significantly before the end of its estimated useful life.

Recoverability is assessed based on the carrying amount of the asset and its fair value which is generally determined based on the sum of the undiscounted cash flows expected to result from the use and the eventual disposal of the asset, as well as specific appraisal in certain instances. An impairment loss is recognized when the carrying amount is not recoverable and exceeds fair value.

As at March 31, 2005 and December 31, 2004 there were no circumstances or events which had occurred which might indicate that the carrying value of the rights may not be recoverable and therefore no test of the recoverability has been made.

(g) Income taxes

The Company accounts for income taxes in accordance with SFAS No. 109 "Accounting for Income Taxes" which requires an asset and liability approach to financial accounting and reporting for income taxes. Deferred income tax assets and liabilities are computed periodically for differences between the financial statement and tax basis of assets and liabilities that will result in taxable or deductible amounts in the future based on enacted tax laws and rates applicable to the periods in which the differences are expected to affect taxable income. Valuation allowances are established when necessary to reduce deferred tax assets to the amount expected to be realized. The income tax provision is the tax payable or refundable for the period plus or minus the change during the period in deferred tax assets and liabilities.

(h) Revenue recognition

The Company derives revenue from license and service fees related to customization and implementation of the software being licensed. Service fees are recorded on a percentage of completion or completed-contract basis depending on whether or not reliable estimates of the costs to complete the work can be obtained. License fees are recognized over the service period when there is persuasive evidence of an arrangement, the fee is fixed or determinable and collection of the receivable is probable. The deferred revenues are amounts received prior to completion of service.

(i) Research and development

The Company annually incurs costs on activities that related to research and the development of new products. Research costs are expenses as they are incurred. Costs are reduced by investment tax credits where applicable.

(j) Use of estimates

The preparation of consolidated financial statements in conformity with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the consolidated financial statements and the reported amount of revenues and expenses during the reported period. Actual results could differ from those estimates. These estimates are reviewed periodically and, as adjustments become necessary, they are reported in earnings in the period in which they become known.

Sona Mobile, Inc. and Subsidiary
Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements
December 31, 2004 and 2003

1. Company background

Sona Mobile, Inc. (the Company) was incorporated on November 12, 2003 in the state of Washington. The Company is a provider of wireless solutions that bring mobility to businesses in the wireless data marketplace. The Company has customers in the banking, manufacturing, entertainment, and utilities/energy industries.

2. Summary of significant accounting policies

These consolidated financial statements are presented in United States dollars and have been prepared in accordance with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles and reflect the following policies:

(a) Principles of consolidation

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Company and its wholly owned subsidiary, Sona Innovations Inc. The subsidiary was acquired December 23, 2003 and the assets and liabilities are included in the 2003 and 2004 consolidated balance sheet. The results of the subsidiary's operations are recorded from the date of acquisition. All intercompany accounts and transactions have been eliminated in consolidation.

(b) Cash and cash equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents are comprised of cash and term deposits with original maturity dates of less than 90 days. Cash and cash equivalents are stated at cost which approximates market value, and are concentrated in two major financial institutions.

(c) Foreign currency translation

In accordance with the provisions of SFAS No. 52 "Foreign Currency Translation", assets and liabilities denominated in a foreign currency have been translated at the year end rate of exchange. Revenue and expense items have been translated at the transaction date rate. For the foreign subsidiary which utilizes its local currency as its functional currency, the resulting translation gains and losses are included in other comprehensive income. Gains or losses resulting from foreign exchange transactions are reflected in earnings.

(d) Long term investments

Equipment is stated at cost. Depreciation is provided on a straight line basis over the estimated useful lives of three to five years.

(e) Measurement uncertainty

The preparation of consolidated financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities, at the date of the financial statements, and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting periods. Actual results could differ from these estimates.

(f) Software rights

Software rights are recorded at the excess of the purchase price of the subsidiary over the fair value of the subsidiary's identifiable net tangible assets. The carrying value of the rights is being amortized over the program application's estimated useful life of four years.

The Company tests for recoverability of software rights when events or changes in circumstance indicate that their carrying amount may not be recoverable. Circumstances which could trigger a review include, but are not limited to significant decreases in the market price of the assets; significant adverse changes in the business climate or legal factors; accumulation of costs significantly in excess of the amount originally expected for the acquisition or construction of the asset; current period cash flow or operating losses combined with a history of losses or a forecast of continuing losses associated with the use of the asset; and current expectation that the asset will more likely than not be sold or disposed of significantly before the end of its estimated useful life.

Recoverability is assessed based on the carrying amount of the asset and its fair value which is generally determined based on the sum of the undiscounted cash flows expected to result from the use and the eventual disposal of the asset, as well as specific appraisal in certain instances. An impairment loss is recognized when the carrying amount is not recoverable and exceeds fair value.

As at December 31, 2004 and 2003 there were no circumstances or events which had occurred which might indicate that the carrying value of the rights may not be recoverable and therefore no test of the recoverability has been made.

(g) Income taxes

The Company accounts for income taxes in accordance with SFAS No. 109 "Accounting for Income Taxes" which requires an asset and liability approach to financial accounting and reporting for income taxes. Deferred income tax assets and liabilities are computed periodically for differences between the financial statement and tax basis of assets and liabilities that will result in taxable or deductible amounts in the future based on enacted tax laws and rates applicable to the periods in which the differences are expected to affect taxable income. Valuation allowances are established when necessary to reduce deferred tax assets to the amount expected to be realized. The income tax provision is the tax payable or refundable for the period plus or minus the change during the period in deferred tax assets and liabilities.

(h) Revenue recognition

The Company derives revenue from license and service fees related to customization and implementation of the software being licensed. Service fees are recorded on a percentage of completion or completed-contract basis depending on whether or not reliable estimates of the costs to complete the work can be obtained. License fees are recognized over the service period when there is persuasive evidence of an arrangement, the fee is fixed or determinable and collection of the receivable is probable. The deferred revenues are amounts received prior to completion of service.

(i) Research and development

The Company annually incurs costs on activities that related to research and the development of new products. Research costs are expenses as they are incurred. Costs are reduced by investment tax credits where applicable.

(j) Use of estimates

The preparation of consolidated financial statements in conformity with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the consolidated financial statements and the reported amount of revenues and expenses during the reported period. Actual results could differ from those estimates. These estimates are reviewed periodically and, as adjustments become necessary, they are reported in earnings in the period in which they become known.

Prior to the acquisition the two companies were at arm's length. The consideration for the shares was $132,175 ($175,000 Canadian) in cash and short term notes as well as assumption of $377,644 ($500,000 Canadian) of current debt owed to the majority shareholder of the investee prior to the acquisition (note 5).

The allocation of the purchase price is as follows:

Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements

7. Convertible note payable

In July 2004 the Company issued a note for proceeds for $100,000, its face value. The note is due January 2006 and bears interest at 12% per annum, payable upon maturity. On the note's due date, 48,500 common shares are to be issued to the note holder. The note is convertible to 158,730 common shares or $.63 per share, at any time before the due date.

In accordance with EITF 98-5 the fair value of the conversion option on the date of issuance was nil as the conversion price was equal to the current issue price for the shares. The obligation to issue common shares has been valued at the market price at the time of issue in the amount of $30,555 and is reflected as part of "Other paid-in capital" in shareholder's equity and the related note discount, netted against the note payable. Interest and amortization of the discount are charged to income over the term of the note.

On March 2, 2005 the holder of the note exercised the conversion. The other paid-in capital and the carrying value of the note payable including accrued interest and unamortized discount of $21,580 have been recorded as proceeds for the issue of the 158,730 shares.

8. Share capital

Redeemable Preference shares

The board of directors has designated 3 million of the 10 million preference shares authorized as Series A preference shares. The shares are voting, have a non-cumulative dividend rate of 6% and are convertible to common shares on a one to one basis, subject to certain anti-dilutive provisions. The shares are redeemable at the option of the holder, if the Company is not sold, merged or subject to a public offering within 5 years of issue. The redemption amount is equal to their paid up amount plus an additional 6% compounded annually. Should the Company be subject to a public offering where the offering price is 33 times the issue price and in aggregate greater than $10 million or a majority of the Series A preferred shareholders provide consent, the shares are subject to a mandatory conversion to common shares. The holders of the Series A preferred shares have the right to purchase shares offered for sale by the Company in a number of shares necessary to maintain the holder's pro rata ownership on the basis of common share equivalents outstanding. Due to the redeemable feature of these shares they have been classified as a liability in the balance sheet.

In December, 2003 1,686,667 Series A preference shares were issued to the Company's founders for nominal consideration and 500,000 Series A preference shares were issued at $150,000 in repayment of deposits made on the acquisition of Sona Innovations Inc. as described in note 3. In January and May, 2004 141,112 Series A preference shares were issued for $130,000 to finance the remainder of the acquisition.

Common shares

In December, 2003 496,667 common shares were issued to the Company's founders for nominal consideration, 183,334 shares were issued for $35,000 in repayment of deposits made on the acquisition of Sona Innovations Inc. as described in note 3 and 250,000 shares were issued for nominal consideration to the former majority shareholder of the subsidiary as compensation for delays in closing the acquisition. In January and June, 2004 and during August to October, 2004 an aggregate of 628,176 shares were issued for $368,997. The proceeds of these issues were used to pay the remaining notes payable and debt assumed in the acquisition of the subsidiary as described in note 3, as well as to finance current operations.

In December 2004 the Company received $175,000 for 101,157 shares issued January 3, 2005. this amount is reflected as "Other paid-in capital" in the balance sheet.

Sona Mobile, Inc. and Subsidiary
Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements
December 31, 2004 and 2003

8. Share capital (continued)

On November 18, 2004 the board authorized 590,000 shares to be issued to various employees and a consultant for no consideration. These shares were issued January 3, 2005. The value of these shares is $371,700, of which $46,463 has been recorded as expense in the current period and $325,237 has been recorded as deferred stock based compensation in the statement of shareholders' deficiency.

9. Financial instruments

The Company's financial instruments consist of cash, accounts receivable, accounts payable, deposits on share subscriptions, notes payable, other short term loans and amount due to shareholder.

The Company is subject to credit risk with respect to its accounts receivable to the extent that debtors do not meet their obligations. The Company monitors the age of its accounts receivables and may delay development or terminate information fees if debtors do not meet payment terms.

The Company is subject to foreign currency risk with respect to financial instruments denominated in a foreign currency.

A reasonable estimate of fair value of the amount due to shareholder and other short term loans could not be made as the timing of payments, if any, is not known.

Due to the short period to maturity, the book value of the remaining financial instruments approximates their fair value.

10. Income taxes

Deferred tax benefits arising from net operating loss and scientific research and experimental development expenditure carryforwards were determined using the applicable statutory rates. The net operating loss carry forward balances vary from the applicable percentages of net loss due to expenses, primarily amortization of software rights, recognized under generally accepted accounting principles, but not deductible for tax purposes.

The Company has Canadian scientific research and experimental development expenditures of approximately $815,000 that may be carried forward indefinitely and applied to reduce taxable income in future years. In addition, the Company has losses carried forward for Canadian tax purposes which may be applied to reduce taxable income in the amount of approximately $240,000. Losses in the amount of $52,000 expire in 2009 and the remaining $188,000 expire in 2014.

Net operating loss carryforwards available for U.S. federal and state tax purposes of approximately $287,000. Of these losses $115,000 expires in 2023 and 2013 for federal and state purposes, respectively, and $172,000 expires in 2024 and 2014 for federal and state purposes, respectively.

The utilization of the net operating losses to offset future taxable income may be limited under U.S. tax laws.

At December 31, 2004 and 2003 the Company had net deferred tax assets of approximately $447,000 and $336,000 arising from the net operating loss and scientific research and experimental development expenditure carryforwards. These deferred tax assets are fully offset by deferred tax liability arising from the software rights, the amortization of which is not deductible for tax purposes and the remainder by valuation allowances.

The deferred tax liability related to the software is $145,000 and $194,000 at December 31, 2004 and 2003. The Company has established a valuation allowance of 100% to the extent of the deferred net tax assets since it is more likely than not that the benefit will not be realized. During 2004 and 2003 the valuation allowance increased by $160,000 and $142,000.

Sona Mobile, Inc. and Subsidiary

In the Merger, the former shareholders of Sona Washington received 539,733 shares of our Series A Convertible Preferred Stock, par value $.01 per share (the "Series A Preferred Stock") and the advisor to Sona Washington received 28,407 shares of Series A Preferred Stock. The Series A Preferred Stock (a) votes with the Common Stock on an as converted basis; (b) has an aggregate liquidation preference of $3.25 million and (c) is convertible into shares of our common stock, par value $.01 per share (the "Common Stock") in the ratio of 48.11159 shares of Common Stock for each share of Series A Preferred Stock. In addition, if Perfectdata achieves certain operational goals either in the current fiscal year or over the two-year period that includes the current fiscal year and the next fiscal year, the former shareholders of Sona Washington are entitled to receive such number of additional shares of Common Stock so that their interest in PerfectData, measured as of the date of the Merger, would be 85% rather than 80%. Also, in connection with the Merger, the Chief Executive Officer and four out of the five members of our board of directors of PerfectData resigned. The sole remaining director then appointed three designees of Sona Washington to the board and the newly reconstituted board then appointed new senior officers all of whom had previously been officers and/or directors of Sona Washington.
