Complementary Pension Plan

(Rio de Janeiro, September 12, 2006). PETRÓLEO BRASILEIRO S/A - PETROBRAS, [Bovespa: PETR3/PETR4, NYSE: PBR/PBRA, Latibex: XPBR/XPBRA, BCBA: APBR/APBRA], a Brazilian international energy company, announces that the vast individual adhesion foreseen to the proposal for resolving the existing structural problems its complementary pension plan covering members and beneficiaries (employees, retirees and pensioners), has not been achieved.

The proposal's adoption required the adhesion of the vast majority of fund members, including employees, retirees and pensioners. The Company hereby notifies that only 53% of those affected, have adhered to the proposal, thus rendering unfeasible its renegotiation and implementation.

The Company's proposal involved the alteration of the Petros Plan's Regulations, principally with respect to the item relating to the restatement method, removing the linkage of the readjustment of benefits paid to retirees and pensioners from the salary increases awarded to active employees. Petrobras further proposed the extinguishing and settlement of ongoing litigation which in the light of the lack of the necessary adhesion to the new model, will continue to proceed through the courts. Under the proposal, benefits would have been readjusted according to an inflation index.

Given the non-acceptance of the proposal, Petrobras will request Petros to adopt the legal measures to remedy the current actuarial deficit. Pursuant to the prevailing legislation, the deficit must be remedied according to the existing proportion between the sponsors and the plan members, be they active employee members or beneficiaries, through readjustment of the respective contributions or a reduction in benefits.

As widely announced, the current deficit has already been recognized, registered in the Company's accounts and shown in the sponsor's Financial Statements Notes.

In addition, we wish to inform that any contribution on the part of Petrobras and other sponsors or by the members, will increase the Plan's assets, reducing the deficit, on a cash basis, without affecting the result of those sponsors Companies participants in Petros' complementary private pension plans. These values will only be determined following a joint decision between the sponsoring Companies and Petros, and the approval of the Complementary Social Security Secretariat - SPC. Once this process is concluded, the values will be announced to the market accordingly.

In parallel, Petrobras and Petros have continued to pursue discussions with the regulatory organs on a new complementary pension plan for employees hired from 2002 and future employees based on the defined contribution model, in line with the structure previously notified. These employees are not enrolled in the existing complementary pension plan, but are covered by a life insurance policy funded by the Company, thus making the implementation of a new plan increasingly necessary.
