to (euro)28.1 billion at constant exchange rates

Revenue from core businesses amounted to (euro)28,073 million, up 5.9%, with growth of 7.2% at constant exchange rates. The negative impact of exchange rates ((euro)350 million) is attributable to variation in the dollar for (euro)224 million (the average dollar-euro rate was 0.95 at the end of December 2002 compared with 0.90 at the end of December 2001), with latin-american currencies having less of an impact. Internal growth from core businesses was 5%.

Revenue from non-core businesses that have already been sold or are planned to be sold amounted to (euro)2,006 million, compared with (euro)2,614 million at December 31, 2001. Consolidated revenue for Vivendi Environnement thus increased 3.3% to (euro)30,079 million.

The net impact of external growth of core businesses amounted to (euro)616 million, attributable primarily to the contribution of Marius Pedersen (Denmark), SIRAM (Italy) and Verney (France).

During the fourth quarter of 2002, Vivendi Environnement maintained buoyant commercial development in both the municipal and industrial markets. The company's performance is illustrated by several contracts. These include waste collection and street cleaning in Camden and integrated management of household waste in East Sussex in the U.K.; the management of municipal water services in Germany; the operation of Boston's rail network in the U.S.A.; in the municipal segment and also in the industrial segment in France (energy services with Arcelor) and in Malaysia (with Petronas).

Revenue generated outside France by core businesses reached (euro)15,354 million, representing 55% of total revenue.

(*) Excluding non-core disposals already completed or planned:
US Filter's businesses Filtration & Separation, Plymouth, Surface Prep and Distribution US, as well as Bonna Sabla in France.

(1) excluding non-core disposals already completed or planned.

- o Internal growth from core water businesses amounted to 4%. This growth takes into account a reduction in revenues for the engineering activity linked to the increased selectivity of contracts.
- o In France, internal growth from water distribution was 3%.
- o Outside France, excluding the United States, and despite the non-renewal of the Puerto Rico contract last June, there was strong growth in outsourcing business revenue (15%), mainly from contracts signed in Eastern Europe (Prague, Gorlitz...), Morocco (Rabat, Tangiers and Tetouan), and in Asia (revenue rose 27% due to the start-up of Inchon, Chengdu and Shanghai).
- o In the United States, solid growth in outsourcing, and, to a lesser extent, growth in equipment and Culligan sales, resulted in over 7% revenue growth from core businesses in dollars.
- o Revenue from non-core businesses already sold or planned to be sold amounted to (euro)2,006 million, compared with (euro)2,614 million at December 31, 2001.

- o Overall, internal growth amounted to 5%, with 3.3% in France.
- o Outside France, growth of 8.8% at constant exchange rates, including 6.2% internal growth, was due to the effects of growth in Northern Europe (contracts in Bromley, Sheffield and Hampshire in the U.K.) and Asia (Hong Kong, where there was strong growth in business volume, and Singapore, with the start-up of a new contract). In the United States, growth came from new municipal contracts for solid waste and good

- o Revenue in France increased 8.7% compared with 2001. The negative impact of the gas price reduction effective April 1, 2002, was offset by growth in cogeneration business, up 16% for the year.
- o Outside France, the 18.8% internal growth was due in particular to the start-up of the Tallin, Vilnius and Poznan contracts.
- o External growth in energy services was due mainly to the acquisition of Siram in Italy.

- o In France, internal growth of 11.3% was attributable to new and extended contracts.
- o Outside France, excluding the impact of the end of the South Central contract, revenue increased 17.6% (full-year effect in 2002 of the BBA and Combus contracts, and new business in Northern and Eastern Europe).
- o In the United States, revenue increased by a factor of 2.4 to reach (euro)83 million.
- o External growth of 6.0% was due primarily to the acquisitions of Verney and Yellow Transportation.

- o Overall internal growth amounted to 8.5%.
- o Business was driven by municipal services (+12%), construction and cement in Spain.

Vivendi Environnement's position in Europe, North America and certain Asian countries, along with its ongoing strategy of growth in environmental services, enabled the company to pursue its expansion in 2002 despite the continuation of a difficult business climate.

The asset disposals completed since 2000 before the downturn in the economic climate, together with Vivendi Environnement's commercial dynamism as confirmed again by the signature of many new contracts throughout the year, allow the company to expect continued growth in its core businesses in 2003.

The constant strengthening of the company's financial situation and the balance maintained between industrial and municipal customers give Vivendi Environnement the means of further enhancing its global leadership position in environmental services.

Vivendi Environnement (Paris Stock Exchange: VIE and NYSE: VE), comprised of Vivendi Water (worldwide water products and services), Onyx (solid waste and industrial services), Dalkia (energy services), Connex (transportation) and FCC (Spanish company engaged in environmental and construction related industries), is the largest environmental services company in the world, with consolidated sales of (euro)30 billion as of December 31, 2002.
